LINC'S MISSION

Leader's Incorporated (LINC) was started four years ago and has been recognized as one of The University of Tulsa's Top Ten Organizations. Our goal is to offer current students a great opportunity to get involved and share their experiences and the knowledge they have gained from college life with incoming minority students. We want to help new minority students become involved on campus, by developing and enhancing their leadership skills, so that they can be successful students. We believe it is important to build a foundation of peer support that will help minority students transition into the college environment, while providing them the tools essential for success at TU.

LINC LEADERS INCORPORATED

A peer-based mentoring program dedicated to helping incoming minority students become successful students

MENTORS

LINC's mentor program is designed to build a solid foundation of peer support that will help incoming freshman minority students to more easily transition into the college environment. We need experienced students to stand in as mentors for these incoming students, and offer guidance and support as they adjust to life on campus.

What are the Benefits?

There are several benefits of being a mentor in the LINC program. This is your chance to pass on what you learned as an underclassman to someone else while gaining leadership experience, getting involved on campus, and building your resume.

Working with your Mentee

As a mentor, you will be paired with an incoming freshman minority student. An evening retreat in the fall will allow you to get to know your mentee and begin your LINC experience. You will then meet regularly with your mentee (at least once a week) to provide guidance and advice to any questions or concerns they may have. A faculty member or administrator will also be paired with you to offer additional guidance and support.

John Thao (Management) and
Danielle Adamson (Energy Management and Finance)

Educational Programs and Events

You will be given the opportunity to learn and develop valuable skills attending LINC's educational programs with your mentees. These programs highlight important collegiate and professional skills, such as time management, study tips, and how to dress for success. There will also be several off-campus activities planned throughout the year for you and your mentee to enjoy together, such as movie nights at AMC, Laser Quest, and Paintball.
